Navigating with a USB Thumb Drive

Great idea.

We don't need a compass, chart, or destination.

Just hand me a USB thumb drive. I will hold it up to my ear and listen for directions. We can trust the cyber monkey to tell us which way is up, which way is right, which way is best for our Ship of State to sail.

Just let the cybernet handle everything.

Google® knows what's what, what's real, what's not.

Just trust the internet. Everything out there is true, isn't it?

Of course it is.

Like, for instance, the opinions that point out for us what's wrong in our world. What a blessing it is to have those opinions and for the media morality to teach us which opinions we should identify with.

I know a fellow who identifies as a basketball. Seems reasonable to me. After all, this is America, isn't it? Don't we have a right to identify with whomever or whatever we choose?

I think everyone should be who they want to be, kinda like a tomato wanting to be an orange. Why not? Isn't that what "freedom" is all about? Don't we get to be what we want to be?

I want to be a professional golfer and live in a mansion by the sea, so I've been thinking about identifying as a pro and demanding my right to participate in the next Open near my home town.

Well, not much more to say this morning. Too busy watching CBS morning news where Gail King tells me how I should feel about things. That's a big relief, because I don't have to worry about whether my feelings and opinions agree or disagree with the media morality and the bell-curve of public opinion.

Always wanted to be on track with others. Doesn't matter what track they are on, so long as I can ride along and be accepted, no matter how I identify.

Just so you understand, though, it seems reasonable for people to have "rights", and I will continue working for their "right to have rights", but doesn't it seem odd to some of you some of the time to see the emergence of what 50 years ago would have been labeled insanity?

Do you identify with something you aren't?

Do you identify as a patriot, for example, while agreeing with people who are tearing down the framework of society by attacking the courts that make society possible?

“Oh,” you say, “there he goes again, that Jurisdictionary® guy, hyping his program to teach us Justice and how to get Justice in the courts that are all crooked and corrupt. Trying to get us to believe police officers are good people and Law & Order a necessity.”

Yep!

That's me.

And I will never stop until some of you, even if it's only just a very few of you, begin to see the Light that is there to guide us, instead of the internet and public opinion. I won't stop until at least a few million of you are demanding Justice Education in your schools – Justice Education based on FACT not Facebook®.

I won't stop because I know you need Good Government to be happy, and I know you cannot have Good Government without understanding what Good Government is and what you must do to secure it for yourselves and your loved ones ... like learning How to Win in Court so you can eliminate the stupid ideas that prevent you from having Better Government!

Time to loosen the grip you've allowed political correctness to have on you and your children and the future of civilization, the grip of PC you've allowed yourselves to believe is more important than taking action to secure the Better Government you so desperately need.

Time to give up thinking “someone else” will fix what's broken.

Time to kick ugly to the curb.

Time to stand up to those who attack the foundations of your National Heritage.

Time to navigate with Truth, Justice, and the American Way once again.

“Trust in God” has nothing to do with religion. It is three simple words that tell you what Wisdom is, the good sense to know that some things cannot be changed by our opinions nor how carefully we tow the line of political correctness and avoid doing or saying anything that might disappoint the super-sensitive. God doesn't belong to any religion. God simply IS, WAS, and ALWAYS WILL BE ... whether we agree or not, whether we identify as people with an axe to grind or people who seek to be One People under God with Liberty and Justice for ALL.

Choices!

Here's an idea.

Let's identify as Americans!

Let's work for Justice by teaching Justice – to each other and to our children!

Let's make up our minds to no longer be taken in by the media's “moral compass” and turn our Trust to the Principles that cannot be swayed by money or its influence, Principles that make Peace possible, Principles that must no longer be kicked to the curb by politicians while we sit back in our recliners and hope the next set of candidates for public office will repair the stuff we see as “wrong”.

Or ... do nothing about any of this, ignore Jurisdictionary®, and see where we end up.

Patriots do not wait for others to do the hard work.

Patriots have a Flag to remind them who they are and what they believe in.

Patriots obey the law ... even when the law is wrong, because they know the law can be changed when it is wrong, as Patriots have changed it time and time again in our past, because we are Americans!

Justice Education is needed.

Justice Education needs YOU!
